THE COMMONWEALTH.

The Governor has pardoned Noah Watkins, life prisoner, sent from Floyd County in 1870, charged with murder. The prisoner was convicted altogether on the charge of murdering a woman. The Attorney has grave doubts as to his guilt.

E. G. HARTZ, of Winchester, has a confession that he was heavily fined by a young lady in 1882, which he carried through many fights and preserved his honor. He will take it to Lexington to show it to his old comrades at the coming reunion.

THE CORRECTIONAL time for moonlighting. He is said to be the first man that has been arrested the second time for moonlighting. One term jail has heretofore been a lasting restraint on such offenders, but Rob loved the juke so well that he got up a fight and was caught.

A horse of a swarm of bees was found in a cliff near Windy Station, in Lee County, the other day, from which ten gallons of honey was obtained. A cavern in the rock the size of a barrel contained the hive.

WINDS AND FLOODS.

The River Thames Overflows its Banks at London, Ont.—Many Persons Drowned and Scores of Buildings Destroyed—Cyclones in Canada, July 12.

Thirty-two persons lost their lives by a freshet in the Thames Wednesday. A terrible storm, which was heavy rain, broke over the western part of the city shortly before daylight. The river was soon beyond its banks. The flood swept over the whole of the city, and many of the houses of the native western suburbs were under water. Large buildings and mills were carried away. The population of the city was 200,000. The population of the suburbs, some two thousand in number, were driven from their homes in their clothes.

The villagers were sleeping when the storm burst upon them, and awoke only to find their dwellings floating away in the stream. Some houses were overturned and their occupants drowned in their beds. One building caught fire while going down stream, and it up the awful scene, showing some persons running wildly out of the roofs of the floating houses, and others at the windows, and some went to the rescue of the occupants, but before they reached the building it was overturned and the scene was a scene of horror.

The scene was direful in the extreme. Mothers were wailing for lost children, and infants crying of their mothers. Many of the floating houses would have been consumed by fire, had they not been extinguished. Many of them in their terror rushed wildly out into the water and were swept away. Some of the houses were carried away by the flood, and some were carried away by the flood, and some were carried away by the flood.
